

Exclusive License Agreement

Territory:

Date:

Premise for the below terms for a territorial licensing agreement to own the rights to use, exploit and commercialize the iLamp economic engine.

iLamp is not merely a product, but a detailed strategy that spawns an entire ecosystem of revenue generating activity.

Conflow Power Group (CPG) is the technology aggregator behind iLamp, who through global relationships with promotional and territorial licensees, technology providers, engineers, software developers, fintech platforms, banks, listing specialists, design studios, laboratories, property developers and hardware manufacturers has created a ecosystem spanning the globe based on the economic engine of iLamp. iLamp is not merely a product, but a detailed strategy that spawns an entire ecosystem of revenue generating activity.

Where the product known as iLamp may evolve, the strategy is fixed as providing high quality branded street lamps, with easily identifiable owners, where the energy generated, capabilities provided and rack space within the lamp is available to sell, for rental income or 'revenue' creating a world first revenue generating street lamp.

One of the key objectives is to fill the predesignated space within the pole with products, sensors, communication devices, services, modules and or apps. The models created around each of these, such as PaaS, iLamp App and Module stores, are made available to the licensee to exploit and integrate their own products that meet the iLamp Developer Pack Specification into the global network of licensees. This dynamic creates ever evolving products and revenue streams. This revenue ability allows for a listing on the ILOCX to sell both promotional licenses and territorial licenses as sub licenses within the territory covered by this document. This has the result of further expanding the potential and value of this license and is part of the economic engine designed and created by CPG, in partnership with the International Licensing Organisation (ILO) and its contract exchange tech platform ILOCX.

A commitment to high manufacturing and quality standards and a guarantee of backwards compatibility means even the most basic version of iLamp holds potential across its entire lifespan. As third-party modules and apps grow, these can be offered to the lamp holder for a charge, or a price may be offered to the lamp holder to house a module that benefits a third party, as in the case of communications and cell towers. A detailed manufacturers code of conduct is provided in the licensee's data room.

Conflow Power Group (CPG) grants comprehensive rights, enabling and encouraging sublicensing. This grants the license holder a high degree of autonomy, flexibility while still being able to rely on crucial support from iLamp HQ in the form of supply lines and a Service Level Agreement, giving the licensee subsidised access to Conflow Power Groups fundraising, research, design, development, and technical support. This access is also available to sublicensees.

All of this is structured to ensure the licensee succeeds, with flexibility, ownership and support, ensuring that both parties interests are fully aligned.

This license and relationship with Conflow Power Group enables the licensee to quickly establish operations, get into revenue, raise capital and secure a solid valuation allowing the owners to remain in control and motivated to maintain the spirit of this agreement. The simplicity in the license agreement is structured to ensure it is unambiguous, clearly covering what the licensor is offering and what the licensee is buying, how that is to be paid, under what terms the parties interact and ensure the value of this document is secure and interpretations cannot be fashioned to upset the validity and performance of the agreement. Where there is a loan account with CPG or its nominees, these loan terms will be covered by the loan agreement. Where there is the need for manufacturing agreements, warranty agreements, indemnity on various parts of the business they will be covered in separate documentation to keep this license agreement clear and focused. This license agreement maybe changed or altered to accommodate an economic benefit where a clear economic benefit arises for the licensee. An example of this would be top down sales to national companies that seek to install iLamps in multiple locations and in some instances inside the territory covered by this agreement. Any national sales must benefit the licensee within their territory allowing for a reasonable commission payable to the national account provider. All agreements for any national accounts will be agreed separately from this license agreement.

Upon signature of the Exclusive License Agreement:

- Licensing assets for iLamp Texas will be transferred into the designated account on ILOCX.
- Sales documents and design files will be placed into the licensee’s data room, these include wiring and connector specifications and diagrams. Fixings and component specifications. Software.
